

Totally destroyed

Lack of water hampered firefighters' efforts to save this vacant house in a remote area of North Wilmington on Friday afternoon. The fire was one of two suspected cases of arson last week.

Arson suspected in house fires

Two fires of suspicious origin struck empty homes in Wilmington last week. One house was totally destroyed, the other moderately damaged.

The first fire was discovered just after midnight on the morning of Wednesday, July 8, in the Mein home, located between Faulkner Avenue and Miller Road. Firefighters were able to save the structure. The cause was logged as arson.

On Friday afternoon, firefighters were able to do little to stop a fire in a vacant house off Ballardvale Street. The former Pasquale Nardone home was located in an area with no hydrants. Firefighters worked from the tanks in the fire engines, but had only enough water to keep the fire from spreading into adjoining woods. They made frequent trips to a hydrant on the Gillette property to reload the tanks.

A man living in the area reported seeing a motorcyclist near the house shortly before the fire was discovered, about 3 p.m.

The vacant, uninsured house was owned by R.J. Kelly of Burlington, a real estate developer, who is planning an industrial development. The property is located opposite the tracks from Service Warehouse.

New zoning bylaw signed

Wilmington's amendments to the zoning bylaw, voted in town meeting on May 16 and 17 of this year, have been signed by Attorney General Francis Bellotti. The attorney general signed on June 30 and Wilmington's constable, Arthur Lynch has posted the bylaws in accordance with state law.

There was one change, Assistant Attorney General Henry F. O'Connell deleted two lines before the law was signed by Bellotti.

Lines 4 and 5, of paragraph 3.7.1, adopted under article 1, had the words "adult book store and adult motion pictures" deleted, by O'Connell.

O'Connell, in a letter to the town clerk, said that "many activities covered by the deleted words have been held to be protected first Amendment rights. See Young v. American MiniTheatres, Inc., 427 US 50 (1976) and Schad v. Borough of Mount Ephraim, 452 US 61 (1981).

The amendments, as they are termed, constitute a new set of zoning bylaws for Wilmington, with some extensive changes. They were prepared by planning consultant Kevin Hurley of Concord. The two lines which were deleted were put into the bylaws at the suggestion of Mr.

Planning board approves lot for pizza parlor

A plan of land for a pizza parlor along Lowell Street and near Maple Meadow Brook was signed by the Wilmington Planning Board on July 12.

The plan is for a lot which includes 66,455 square feet of land, owned by Michael McCoy. The front part has been zoned for High Density. The plan was signed by three members of the board, with two abstentions.

Fight over WHS principal continues

The fighting continues over the selection of a new high school principal. At a special meeting on Thursday, July 7, the school committee twice rejected Superintendent Dr. Carol Sager's nomination of David Sweeney, assistant principal of Foxboro High School. That, coupled with their rejection of this candidate at a previous meeting, totalled three negative votes. Linda McMenimen was the only board member to cast an affirmative vote, and John Brooks refused to vote. The school committee will continue the discussion of a new high school principal at its meeting on Wednesday, July 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school library.

According to state law, the superintendent may recommend the same person to the committee for three consecutive votes. Once that person has been rejected all three times, she must recommend a new candidate. Sager did just that, nominating Dr. Joseph Connelly, principal of Wilmington's North Intermediate School. She commended Connelly, who recently received the Outstanding Principal of the Year Award for Massachusetts. Once again, however, this candidate received only McMenimen's vote.

Committee member Bridget Zukas praised Connelly for his fine educational and organizational skills, but said she could not vote for him because of his "strong and long background as an elementary teacher and principal." She said she would prefer a candidate with more experience at the high school level.

McMenimen countered Zukas' comments by saying, "There's no better training ground to learn about high school kids than by starting in elementary school. It's like being a parent; you have to grow into it."

Committeeman Anthony Accardi said he wanted to see Dr. Sager nominate each of the six finalists to the board in alphabetical order since all six are supposed to possess the necessary qualifications of a high school principal. If they are not all qualified to do the job, he went on, then our superintendent lacks administrative authority because she was the one who selected the six from the 50 total applicants for the position. If she can not feel comfortable nominating each of the six candidates to the board, he explained, then he would like her to "state her personal reasons for being opposed to each candidate."

This suggestion, however, does not comply with the state law regarding the process of choosing a high school principal.

The superintendent is only required to nominate those people she feels are best suited for the job. She can refuse to name any other person. McMenimen said, "This process is laid out by state law to take politics out of it." She added that it was not up to the board to decide how Dr. Sager should make her selections.

Accardi explained that he was not trying to change the law. He said, however, that he refused to be a "rubber stamp for the superintendent." Dr. Sager uses this (law) as a political sword under the throats of the school committee.

McMenimen continued the discussion, saying that Dr. Sager was doing what she thought was morally right, and the board had no right to try to impose its morals on her. "Nobody has to explain what could happen to a superintendent who holds steadfast against the wishes of the board," she interjected.

Bridget Zukas said she resented the implication that the board had made or received any threats regarding the selection of a new high school principal. McMenimen explained that she did not mean to say the board had been threatening anybody, but rather that she herself had received threats. "I received a phone call," she said, "that if I didn't vote for a certain candidate, I wouldn't be re-elected."

The meeting, attended by up to 75 interested residents, adjourned after only 25 minutes.

Regional Health Center news

Support group for parents of hyperactive children

A new educational series and support group for parents of hyperactive children was begun at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, June 29.

The first speaker was David S. Salomon, M.D., Regional Health Center pediatrician, who spoke on diagnosis, symptoms, medication and treatment of hyperactivity.

Cindy Levine, L.I.C.S.W., social services coordinator, lead a group discussion and focused on networking on July 6.

Parent - child interactions, behavior management and parental needs will be addressed by Frank Lamson, Ph.D., a Melrose psychologist, who specializes in counseling families with hyperactive children on July 13.

Mary Cummings, M.A. speech - language therapist, will discuss hyperactivity and its affects on learning, speech and language; and how the therapist works to improve language and cognitive skills on July 20.

"Nutritional Approaches to Hyperactivity" will be the topic on July 27 with Elvira Q. Johnson, R.D., M.S., nutrition services coordinator, discussing foods that stimulate and inhibit hyperactivity.

At the last session, on August 3, Cindy Levine will again lead a support group meeting where parents can share problems, solutions and ideas for coping with their hyperactive children.

All programs will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Regional Health Center, located on Route 62 in North Wilmington.

There is a fee of $10 per person for all six sessions or $15 per couple.

If your child is constantly fidgety, uncontrollable, moody, difficult to discipline and has trouble sleeping through the night - don't tear your hair out - he may be suffering from hyperactivity. Learn more about the symptoms and how hyperactivity can be controlled through treatment at this Wednesday evening educational series which will promote sharing and new working among parents.

WIC nutrition program site

WIC, the federally-funded supplemental food program for pregnant or nursing women, infants and children under five, is now available at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

The program was established to promote good health for those who have nutritional or health risks and are economically in need. Eligible families may have incomes at 185 percent of the poverty level, for example, up to $276 per week for a family of three.

Participants in the program are evaluated by a nutritionist before receiving food vouchers which can be redeemed at local supermarkets for infant formula, milk, cheese, eggs, cereal, 100 percent fruit juice, dry beans - peas or peanut butter.

WIC nutritionist, Marcella Teeman, M.S., will provide counseling to WIC clients on Fridays, and a food voucher clerk will distribute vouchers on Fridays, or on Tuesdays as needed.

All pregnant women who meet the income requirements are eligible for the WIC program.

Eligible infants include those with poor or inadequate food intake, low or high birth weights, premature or postmature births, medical conditions or short stature. Other eligible infants include those born to women who were on the WIC program when pregnant.

Children under five eligible for the program include those who are underweight, short for their age, anemic, overweight or those who have a current medical condition.

The Regional Health Center is a sponsoring agency of the Northwest WIC program. Other sites include Somerville Hospital, Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford and the Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn.

Residents of any town may utilize the Regional Health Center site. Vouchers may be used at specific supermarkets and drug stores in Reading, Wilmington, Tewksbury, Lowell, Billerica, Chelmsford and Dracut. Additional vendors will be designated in October.

Anyone interested may call 657-3910, ext. 525. Prior to acceptance, an income-eligible participant will receive a medical referral form which must be filled out by her physician and returned to the WIC office. WIC will then arrange an appointment for the participant with the nutritionist.

WIC is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture with 26 offices in Massachusetts.

New procedure lets diabetics test own blood sugar levels

A new, inexpensive, and convenient procedure now available to diabetics to test their own blood sugar levels is being taught at Choate - Symmes Health Services.

It is called Chemstrip Bg, and it is a fairly simple test, using a drop of blood obtained from the finger or ear lobe, said Helene Clayton, R.N., patient teaching instructor at Choate - Symmes.

"The blood sample is placed on the Chemstrip Bg, a special reagent paper. It is timed, wiped off, then timed again; and the color change which occurs is compared with a chart to determine the 'value' indicating the blood sugar level," she explained.

Depending on the results, diabetics should then either call their physician without delay or simply make note of them for their own records, to share with their physician at the next office visit.

The frequency with which the test should be performed depends on the individual case. Some diabetics are advised to test daily, others as directed by their physicians.

Advantages of the Chemstrip Bg are its low cost and the fact that it is much more convenient than going to a laboratory for every venous blood sample. It costs only approximately 50 cents for each disposable strip and is done in the comfort of the patient's own home. However, patients are still encouraged to have blood samples taken at a laboratory regularly.

Clayton called the Chemstrip a "real breakthrough" for diabetics. "It gives them much more information than they previously had with only urine test results."

With physician referral, persons with diabetes are invited to meet with either Clayton or Sally Estrella, R.N., also a patient teaching instructor at Choate - Symmes, for simple instructions in its use and interpretation.

Chemstrip BG was introduced five years ago, but has become popular at community hospitals within the last few years, said Clayton. She credited David Singer, M.D., Lexington internist - endocrinologist and associate chief of medicine at Choate - Symmes, with its introduction for Choate - Symmes patients. With the assistance of Clayton and Estrella, Dr. Singer directs the Choate - Symmes Continuing Education for Diabetics Program, which meets monthly throughout the year with the exception of the summer months.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Oh Holy Spirit, thou who art all knowing, who brightens every path that I may reach my goal, thou who givest me this divine gift of forgiving and forgetting wrongs done unto me and who in every instant of my life art with me, I'd like in this short dialogue to affirm my gratitude for all your blessings and re-affirm once again that I never want to part from thee though the illusion of material things abound.

My desire is to be with thee and all my loved ones in perpetual grace. Thank you for your mercy on me and mine. (Person should pray 3 consecutive days without revealing petition. Within three days grace will be attained regardless of how difficult the petition may be.)

Publish this prayer, once grace attained. Grateful for Grace Attained H.M.

Letter to the editor

Dear Mr. Neilson:

We would like to publicly applaud the Wilmington Fourth of July Committee, Jack Cushing, and the many volunteers who made the recent town celebration such an outstanding success. What a wonderful example they have set for the nurturing and encouragement of community spirit!

The Silver Lake Spotlighters are proud to have been a part of this tremendous celebration and look forward to our future involvement with this and other events.

Congratulations, Fourth of July Committee and workers - and thanks for the fun!

Sincerely,
Celia Bartolotti, Pres.
Silver Lake Spotlighters

Dear Larz:

We are a group of parents who are very disturbed with the Wilmington School Committee's lack of progress in the selection of a new high school principal.

For the public and those school committee members who may be unfamiliar with the Massachusetts Law, Chapter 71, Section 38 reads as follows: "no election, contract, or promotion of a teacher shall be made by a school committee unless such person shall have been nominated for such election, contract, or promotion by the superintendent of schools."

It is clear to us that the school committee these past two weeks has not acted in the best interest of the children. It would appear they have lost sight of what should be their first priority, quality education. Their inability to elect a candidate can be directly attributed to their closed-mindedness, personal prejudices, biased attitudes, and an attempt to disregard the law.

Hopefully, now that the school committee has been reminded of the law, the members will refrain from violating it by recommending their own personal candidate. Our appreciation to Linda McMenimen for her ability to respect and comply with the law.

We expect the chairman of the school committee to strictly enforce the law. Violations of the selection process, mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, should not be allowed to continue. The entire community has an obligation to insist on quality education for its children.

We would like to encourage the community to become actively involved. Participate by attending meetings. Form your own opinions based on facts. Demand that future meetings continue in a dignified and orderly manner.

Dear Larz:

We would like to publicly say "thank you" to some of the members of the Wilmington Housing Authority.

Mel Keough, Bill Strob and Dan Gillis have unselfishly given so much of their time here at Deming Way. These gentlemen have cut grass, raked, painted, done repair work, planted flowers, etc., as well as being available when we have had a problem.

Because of them, the residents are happier and Deming Way is now a much nicer place in which to live.

Thank you again for caring about all of us!

Dear Larz:

The beat goes on. When will this frustrating issue of selecting a high school principal end? The longer this stalemate continues, the more devastating effect it is having on our children's education — the most important concern here.

The superintendent stated to the school committee that a person who is a strong disciplinarian and exhibits good leadership is the type she wants for this position. Each time, however, she presents the school committee with a candidate, only one member has voted in favor. Obviously five members of the school committee are not on the same wave length as the superintendent.

This is a school committee which we have elected and I feel that they, as well as the superintendent, are qualified to select a principal. They should be allowed the right to vote for the candidate they feel is best qualified.

Now however, the superintendent is stymieing the efforts of the school committee. This is a travesty to our educational system when one person can thwart the will of the majority of any elected board.

Think for a minute what would happen in private industry if a president of a corporation made a recommendation to the board of directors to hire a certain manager for one of its branch offices, and this person was overwhelmingly rejected by the board. Would that president renominate the same person again? Would that president nominate another person who would also not receive a favorable vote? I think not.

It doesn't take a Ph.D. in education to select a person to fill this position, only common sense. Unfortunately, colleges do not give out degrees in common sense!

Dr. Hiller's medicines

©Copyright 1983
by Capt. Larz Neilson

Was Dr. Henry Hiller a physician? Was he a Doctor of Medicine? Or was he a "quack?"

There are those who would classify him as a quack.

Some may remember in their history books, the story of the plague which afflicted the city of London about 1665. It was the Black Death, passed on by fleas from rats in that city. The rats were finally destroyed, or nearly so, in the Great London Fire of 1666, and the plague was stilled.

During those days the medical persons of London wore funny hats and long gowns to ward off the evils of the Black Plague. Over their noses they each wore long cone-like instrument, possibly 12 or 14 inches long. That, too, was to ward off the plague.

Those persons were accepted as physicians.

Obviously those persons did not know what they were doing. Those long nose cones did not succeed in keeping away the fleas from the rats.

Remember Galen? He was an extraordinary person, in the days of medieval Italy. He bore the title of physician, and he deserved it. He never attended any modern medical school.

There is Hippocrates. Today's physicians are supposed to be bound by the Hippocratic Oath. He lived over 2,000 years ago in Greece. He is still the highly respected scholar, healer and physician.

To say that a man was not a physician, nor a doctor of medicine, in the days of the 19th century may be easy, but it is in accord with facts? The answer is not always easy to come by.

And to say that Dr. Hiller was not a physician nor a doctor of medicine is difficult. He did have some curative medicines. He did set broken bones in Wilmington, a well attested fact.

He also had medicines which had, as far as can be told, no curative values.

There were no real standards by which a doctor of medicine could be judged until the 20th century came into being. Harvard Medical School, in the early 1900s, tackled and solved that problem, but by that time both of the Drs. Hiller were entombed in their expensive and ornate caskets.

Bavarian born, Dr. Henry Hiller was, according to Polly McIntosh, a druggist. So she testified in the probate court trial over the will of Mrs. Dr. Hiller - France Hiller.

Polly knew him, and respected him. She always called him "Doctor." Henry and France had been married in Canada, she said, not in England as France had claimed. They moved to Malden, Mass., and it was at that time that Henry established his "practice" at 24 Tremont Row, Boston.

Polly testified, on the stand, to the money that Dr. Hiller was making after he established his laboratory. He used to come home and report the money, sometimes as much as $300 a day. It was a good business. The family moved to Wilmington where the Hiller home was built, into which they moved in 1876.

Dr. Hiller was selling a medicine. That was his practice. He advertised in almost every daily paper in the United States, and the money came rolling in.

Essentially he was selling Balsam of Copaiba.

Copaiba grows in Peru and other parts of South America. It is not well known, but it has been known for many years. Even today one can find it defined and explained, in medical books which are published as home guides.

In the United States after the Civil War, gonorrhea affected many persons. Gonorrhea, a genital irritation, is easily passed from one person to another. It is not only painful, but it is embarrassing.

Before other cures were known Balsam of Copaiba was quite effective in helping persons afflicted with the disease. It was not a cure, but was effective in relieving the irritation.

Dr. Hiller devised a formula for preparing Balsam of Copaiba. He printed that formula in all the daily newspapers in the United States. It was very, very complicated, far above the capacities of the average person to understand.

There were half a dozen ingredients. The directions were to take "one half minim" of one ingredient, and one drachm of another, and mix for 20 minutes, after which you added another ingredient and boiled for 12 minutes. Then you did some more things, and still more things.

The advertisement finished with a phrase "if you find this is too much trouble, send me $5.00 and I will send you three bottles."

Those were the magic words that meant wealth for Dr. Henry Hiller. He probably did not have eight MDs working for him as France Hiller told the newspapers, but he did have a lot of money from all over the United States.

At the same time he probably was helping a lot of persons who were unable to get help from elsewhere. In that sense, at least, he was a physician of sorts.

Sometime about 1880, for a reason unknown, Dr. Hiller changed the medicine he sold by mail.

One cannot say that the new medicine helped mankind. It was a mixture which can be called "Spirits of Cocaine."

Persons who used that medicine probably enjoyed it, as some drug addicts today enjoy cocaine. There was some added "kick" of alcohol. Sales seem to have been good.

To say that mankind was benefitted is probably not right.

When Dr. Hiller died his widow, France continued with his office at 24 Tremont Row. She had new labels printed, offering the "medicine" in the name of "Mrs. Dr. Hiller."

But France was not the money maker that her husband had been. Probably the employees were taking home money to which they had no right.

Sometime in the 1890s France Hiller sold the business to her employees. The price was reputed to be $4,000, which was a lot of money, to be sure.

That was the end of the Hiller medical practice, such as it was.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

SUFFERERS FROM
Nervous Debility,
Youthful Indiscretions,
Lost Manhood.

Be Your Own Physician!

Many men, from the effects of youthful indiscretions, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the main cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medicine has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our early practice, and our special practice we have experimented with and discovered new and concentrated remedies. The economic and prescription is offered as a certain and speedy cure, as hundreds of cases of this practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfect cures in all cases must be used in the preparation of this prescription.

Prescription given to Dr. Hiller.

Make a note of the fact that you are not alone in going to bed at night and finding it necessary for the patient to take two pills at bedtime, making the number three a day. The remedy is adapted to every condition of nervous debility and weakness in either sex, and especially in those cases resulting from impotence. The reproductive powers of the male are restored, and the female is enabled to conceive and bear healthy children. South Boston man indicted for robbery at Burger King

A South Boston man in his mid-twenties has been indicted on several charges of armed robbery, including one charge in connection with an October 9, 1982 armed robbery of the Burger King Restaurant in Tewksbury.

The indictments were handed down against Frank Odierno Tuesday, July 7, according to Police Inspector Clifford Bolton.

According to reports, the Tewksbury robbery happened at about 10:50 p.m. on October 9, 1982 when a man displayed a pistol to a female clerk and ordered her to hand over the money from the safe. He allegedly fled the scene on foot with an undetermined amount of cash.

According to reports, the man entered the store, ordered a sandwich and proceeded to eat it. When the store was empty, he approached the clerk, showed a weapon and got the money. He then ordered the clerk into a back room and fled the scene.

Bolton says the indictment grew out of information shared between area police inspectors. Bolton says the inspectors meet once a month to exchange information and that he learned of several other armed robberies of Burger King and Mac Donald's Restaurants throughout the Merrimack Valley. From that information he was able to piece together a case after a long investigation.

Tewksbury Police are charging a Country Club Drive man in connection with the alleged rape of a 16-year-old female. Peter Nicholson, 30, of 70 Country Club Dr., Tewksbury was arrested and charged in connection with the case after being questioned at the police station by Inspectors Robert Haines and Frank Sullivan. Nicholson, a father of four and a disabled worker, faces charges of rape, rape of a child under 16, unnatural acts and unnatural acts on a child under 16.

Police were alerted to the case at 7:35 a.m. Friday, July 8 and filed charges against Nicholson on July 9 at 9:57 a.m.

Officer Maureen Matarese was assigned to full-time duty last week, becoming Wilmington's first female police officer. She was a member of the Wilmington Auxiliary Police before her appointment to the Wilmington Police Department.

Family reunion

Franklin and Geneva (Downs) Morrison, were the guests of honor at a reception held for them Saturday afternoon. Frankie and Jean, formerly of Wilmington, now of Oklahoma City, have been enjoying a vacation with friends and relatives around Wilmington and Maine.

Nearly 100 friends and relatives gathered at the Taplin Avenue home of Helen and Forrest Downs to take part in the gala event.

Strange postcard

If the Town Crier were to give awards for strange or remarkable postcards, Billie Wilson of Andover Street, Wilmington, would get such an award. A postcard was recently received from her, postmarked in Mykino, Greece. Mrs. Wilson was touring the Aegean area.

The remarkable part was that the postcard had no postage stamp. The Greek postal service didn't notice, nor did the U.S. postal service. Billie takes some kind of a prize for that.

Town applies for conservation grant

Water, it's good to the last drop. And it's more than just drops that Tewksbury Town Planner Lee Newman is hoping the town can save if they receive $13,150 in state funds to purchase and distribute water conservation devices.

She submitted an application for a slice of the $1 million that the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) will be awarding to communities for water conservation programs. The $1 million program was approved by the state legislature in 1982.

With the state funds and a required matching allocation from the town, Newman hopes to see the total $23,600 used to buy devices and implement a water conservation public information campaign. The town will be able to buy and then sell to residents at cost some 1000 faucet aerators, 1000 showers heads, 500 toilet dams and 2000 washers that could save the town 26 million gallons of water a year.

The DEQE estimates that an average family of four can save some 27,800 gallons of water a year if they own and use one each of the above devices.

Once the initial stock of devices is depleted, more will be bought and hopefully sold. Once all residents have the devices or interest has waned, then the funds can be used for other conservation measures, such as replacing worn water meters and checking the town's water pipes for leaks.

Because of limited applications, the DEQE has extended its deadline for submission of requests until August and Newman hopes to know by September whether the Tewksbury program will get favorable action.

To go along with the conservation devices, Newman proposes "an education program be developed and targeted toward residential users. The education material will list all user habit changes that are easy to make and do not require much sacrifice." She cited not using a toilet as a waste basket and showering for only five minutes as examples of simple conservation methods.

Her program would also include: stuffing water bills with water conservation literature; placing advertisements in the local paper; designating fire stations and libraries as water conservation information centers; instituting water conservation education programs with apartment, motel and condominium owners; soliciting voluntary cooperation of various restaurants in serving water only upon request; and distributing information to local athletic clubs.

Newman's program would also see "an ad hoc advisory committee, with close communication with chief elected officials," appointed. The committee would consist of representatives from community groups, the planning board, the conservation commission, schools, local businesses, interested citizens and public officials.

Also under Newman's program the Director of Water Billing, Bill Blakney, will purchase and distribute the devices and will report directly to the Water Conservation Advisory Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Spalla

Hope Miceli and Andrew Spalla are wed

St. Thomas Church was the scene of the May 28 wedding of Hope Catherine Miceli, daughter of State Representative and Mrs. James Miceli, and Andrew Philip Spalla of Easton, Ct. The Reverend Victor LaVoie performed the double-ring ceremony before the altar decorated in pink, white and lavender snapdragons and mums.

The bride wore a white organza gown of chantilly lace with a multi-ruffle semi-cathedral length train and matching veil. Her bouquet was white roses, stephanotis and gardenias.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Karen Olshaw Bancroft, formerly of Wilmington, now of Manchester, N.H. Bridesmaids were Christina Miceli, sister of the bride, Linda Prue and Maureen Steven, Regis College friends. The attendants wore matte taffeta hyacinth gowns with deep-ruffled necking. They carried old fashioned bouquets of pink and lavender. Flower girl Jenna Neale of Wilmington wore a white Princess Diana gown.

Paul Spicer of Danbury, Ct. was the best man. Ushers were Midshipman Second Class James Miceli, the bride's brother; Michael Keropian of Philadelphia, cousin of the groom; Daniel Capodiceci of Fairfield, Ct.; and Michael McCoy of Wilmington, cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a pink full length gown with accents of deep pink and lavender with a matching hat and veil.

The reception followed at the Andover Country Club. Laureen King of Natick, A Regis College friend, circulated the guest book.

Following a wedding trip to the Elbow Beach Surf Club in Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Spalla moved into their home in Trumbull, Ct. The bride graduated from Wilmington High School in 1977 and Regis College in 1981. She worked as an account representative at the W.G. Leavitt Insurance Agency in Wilmington. District 14 Senior League Tourney

Seventh inning propels Tewksbury, 17-4

Tewksbury American charged out to a blazing start in the District 14 Senior League 13-year-old Little League All-Star Tournament Sunday with a 17-4 rout of Lowell Gallery at Obden's Field.

The victory sent the locals to the District 14 quarterfinal game scheduled for this Friday night (July 15) with a 5:45 p.m. start at Chelmsford's Varney Field.

Winning pitcher Sanjiv Dhoulakia (five innings pitched) led the way for the winners with a 3 for 5 game that included five RBIs. James Judge also swung a hot bat for Tewksbury with three hits and three more runs batted in.

The locals broke open a tight 4-3 contest with 13 runs in the top of the seventh inning when they sent 18 batters to the plate.

Seven walks and six hits in that seventh inning led to the Tewksbury explosion, with Judge lining two hits. Larry Lumia and Dave Derosé also ripped key safeties in the big inning.

Sarsfield sparks Tewksbury

Righthander Dave Sarsfield fired a three-hitter, striking out six and walking two, as the Tewksbury American District 14 Little League (9-12) All-Stars advanced to quarterfinal action with their 5-1 victory over South Lawrence East Monday night at Poulin Field.

The locals clung to their 5-1 lead into the sixth inning when South Lawrence East loaded the bases with one out. Sarsfield reared back and doused the threat with a 4-6-3 doubleplay ball from second baseman Chip O'Neil to shortstop Miller to first baseman Jim Carfagno.

Carfagno (single), Shawn Morin (RBI single), Chris Macie (single) and Jim Pollard (single) smacked the key hits for Tewksbury.

The Americans will now host Newburyport Thursday night (July 14) in a 5:45 p.m. contest at Poulin Field.

Bobby MacDonald (3 for 3) led the National attack. Eric Flynn, Steve McGlinchey, Jimmy Ware, Tommy Ducey and Paul Haught all had single hits to help the National's cause. Ken Vachon turned in a couple of gems in the field as well.

The Minor League All-Star game was a 14-7 win for the West over the East. The West was led

Tewksbury Youth Soccer

Tewksbury boys capture state title

Tewksbury's first under-10 traveling team capped off a highly successful soccer season by capturing the state title over the Fourth of July weekend in Sterling.

The road to the title began last September when coaches Sal Frasca, Paul Fowler and Bob Wagner accepted an invitation by Boston College's head soccer coach Ben Brewster to play at Alumni Stadium. The game was played at the BC-Long Island halftime, with Tewksbury facing a strong Newton team. To the delight of the coaches and parents, Tewksbury defeated Newton, 1-0.

The weather and lack of gym space forced the team to wait until March before they could be reunited to prepare for the 1983 season. However, 14 of the players stayed in condition by playing hockey and attending power skating sessions. With only three weeks to get ready for the season, Tewksbury compiled a 9-1 record, scoring 52 goals while allowing only six.

As the Division II champions, Tewksbury was entered in the Commissioners Cup. They finished second, defeating Cambridge, 9-1 then lost to Billerica I, 4-1.

The State Tournament began with Tewksbury besting Sutton, the Worcester County representative, 5-2 in overtime. All three games were played in oppressive heat, with Tewksbury's stamina paying off.

In the Sutton game, both teams attacked constantly, with the action moving up and down the field with all shots on net. The half ended with Tewksbury leading, 1-0 on a goal by right-wing Ronnie Wagner. Tewksbury scored its second goal midway through the half when Robert Bussey at right inner pushed the ball past the Sutton keeper.

Sutton came back, squeezing the ball past the post on a corner, then scored again when Tewksbury failed to clear the ball. In the overtime Tewksbury took control, as Marc McConnell made a superb cross to leftwing Fran Correia, who then chipped it into the net. Ronnie Wagner scored again on a pass from Jay MacMullin, followed by a goal from Gregg Columbus, greatly assisted by the relentless pressure of Ken Fowler.

The next opponent was the Essex County entry, which Tewksbury crushed 4-0. The opponent, Peabody was no match for the aggressiveness of Tewksbury. Columbus started it off taking the ball through the Peabody defense and blasting a shot into the net. Ronnie Wagner then scored on a pass from Michael Frasca, putting the game out of reach for the challengers. Robert Bussey, the team's leading scorer, added one more, as did Wagner.

In the final against Holliston, Tewksbury started it off by getting two quick goals from Bussey and left halfback Mark Femino. Holliston, as they had in the last two games, came from behind to tie it up at 2-2.

Immediately after Holliston's second goal, Danny Gillette passed the ball to Gregg Columbus, giving Tewksbury a 3-2 lead at the half. In the second half, Ronnie Wagner finished off Holliston with the team's fourth goal of the game, insuring the victory for the Awesome Orange.

Tewksbury's final record of 13-2, scoring 75 goals while allowing 13, was made possible by the contributions of the following players.

Frank Balsamo: At fullback, very steady, had a big kick when needed and had the ability to bring the ball up the field to the halfbacks.

Robert Bussey: Scored 23 goals, his exceptional speed on the wing and his accuracy on goal made defending him very difficult. Was counted on to explode during every game.

Joey Centrella: Versatile, his primary position was to play in place of any starter who was absent. As the backup goalkeeper, Joey had a 0.5 goals against average. Scored three goals on the forward line.

Gregg Columbus: Scored 13 goals, exceptional passer, one of the best ball controllers on the team. Had the ability to break open the game with his breakaways down field.

Fran Correia: Fine dribbler with a booming shot from the left side. Of the five goals, he scored three were game breakers. Fran's speed and digging ability created many scoring opportunities.

George DeGregorio: The premier goalkeeper in the U10 division in the state. Was never shook up, knew exactly what he was to do when he made the save. Had five shutouts. Made it look easy.

Tommy Delaney: Was moved to halfback to bolster defense. His play in the final game was exceptional. Had the ability to move the ball from the right side to the middle of the field. Good playmaker.

Bobby Ernest: Gave clinics on how to play center fullback. If there was a better one, this team didn't know it. Controlled the defense. His ability to trap, dribble past the opposing forwards was amazing. Was a stone wall.

Mark Femino: Rated in the top 10 on the team. His play at left halfback caused right oriented teams to try the other side. Exceptional speed. Destroyed the other team's attack. Scored one goal.

Ken Fowler: Moved to right inner to add muscle to the second line. Assisted on many goals, great playmaking ability. Was relentless near the net. Fractured seven teeth at a practice and still played.

Michael Frasca: Scored nine goals. Played first seven games with a broken hand. The best ball controller on the team. His shot from the right was lethal. Good solid playmaker. Excellent at center halfback.

Danny Gillette: Good speed and ball control. Exceptional playmaker with four goals. As the left wing had a flair for bringing the ball into the corner drawing the defense out of position so he could pass to the middle.

Billy Godin: Solid fullback, broke up many attacks with his exceptional speed and long legs. Had ability to catch up to any forward that penetrated the defense. Had the strongest kick on the team.

Sean Kelly: Drafted as a goalkeeper, was found to be too valuable as a left halfback. Never tired, durable, perhaps the most consistent player on the field. Set up many goals and scored once.

Jay MacMullin: Starting center half, the most demanding position on the field. Played 10 complete games. Would hide his injuries to stay in the game. Moved to the forward line during games to take a break. Scored four goals, two from center half.

Marc McConnell: Hard worker, never quit. As the right half back his booming kick set up many breakaways. Scored once on a shot the keeper never saw.

John Pawelczyk: A digger, has exceptional ability to move the ball through defenders. Scored four goals. Great strength, durable with great desire.

Ronnie Wagner: Scored two goals during the regular season, then caught fire in the states scoring five times. Exceptional

HOW GOOD IS YOUR BITE?
If your teeth do not rest comfortably on each other when your mouth is closed, your dentist may want to check your bite to see if it needs correcting. One method of doing this is to use ribbons or very fine strips of paper or film coated with special marking materials.
When he asks you to close your mouth he will check to see if your teeth hit evenly in the closed mouth position. Then, with the marking material placed in the upper and lower teeth, he may ask you to slide out your lower jaw in several directions. This is one way of checking to see if you have any high spots on the surface of some of your teeth when they come in contact. He will also check the lateral movements of your jaw as well as forward movements of the lower front teeth against your upper front teeth. An improperly aligned jaw would be the source of many headaches, earaches, neck, shoulder and back pain.
All of these movements help him to discover where certain teeth may need building up or reshaping so they will meet the opposing teeth properly. It also gives him other information he may need so your bite can be corrected, before serious dental problems develop.

Dispute unsettled between town and school committee

by Debbi Michals

The dispute between the town and the school committee over the school committee's attempt to spend the $190,000 left over in its fiscal 1983 budget remains unsettled. The two parties met in Cambridge Superior Court last Thursday, where the school committee hoped to obtain a preliminary injunction to force the town to hold that money in an encumbered account and not close it out as surplus. After denying Town Counsel Alan Altman's request for a dismissal, the judge took the case under advisement until July 27.

But school committee Chairman Bob Peterson hopes to have the matter resolved before the committee is scheduled to reappear in court. He and board of selectmen Chairman Dan Ballou have been working on a settlement, he said, where $53,000 the school committee had planned to use for computers would go back to the town along with $31,000 in surplus funds. The school committee would be allowed to spend the rest of the $190,000 on supplies, however.

According to Peterson, School Business Manager Frank Antonelli said that the school department can "afford to absorb that money (the $53,000) into next year's budget." Since the town will be paying for the asbestos removal and clean-up in the schools, Peterson said "maybe it's time we give some money back to the town." He plans to see how the rest of the committee feels about this settlement at the school committee meeting on July 13. Some board members have already indicated approval, he added.

Altman refused to comment on the prospect of a settlement since he had not discussed it with his clients, Town Accountant Dorothy Peters and, indirectly, the board of selectmen. He did say, however, that the issue is whether or not the school committee has a right to spend all of the $190,000 and not just the $53,000 for computers.

"Legally," Peterson said, "the town has no grounds to pursue this suit. They can't tell us how to spend our money." The people may vote for line items at town meeting, he explained, but once the total school budget is voted, the school committee can then spend that money at its discretion.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski previously explained that according to the Mass. Department of Revenue Bureau of Accounts rules and regulations about how towns can spend money, no department is allowed to spend money from one year's budget to pay for an expense in the next year's budget. Money for the computers, he said, was included in the school committee's fiscal 1984 budget, and therefore he questions whether they can legally cover that expense with leftover funds from fiscal 1983.

When the school committee first submitted purchase orders to the town accountant for computers and supplies, Peters noticed that the computers had already been budgeted for in fiscal 1984, Stapczynski said. At that time, they decided to hold all purchase orders submitted by the school department until the matter was cleared up.

According to Stapczynski, the town sent the school committee a letter requesting that they show that the items they wanted to purchase were included in their fiscal 1983 budget. If they weren't budgeted for in fiscal 1983, but were included in fiscal 1984, then the school committee would have to use 1984 funds to pay for the items, and the $190,000 would be returned to the town to reduce the tax rate in fiscal 1985.

The school department opted to take legal action to obtain the money, rather than submit the requested information to the town accountant.

The attorneys for both the school committee and the town will be taking depositions from department chairpersons during the last week in July prior to reappearing in court. Altman said he had hoped to be taking depositions on July 11 and 12, but Bill Baker, the attorney for the school committee, will be away in Paris for two weeks, so the depositions were postponed.

Legion scholarships

Crossing replacement

A Boston and Maine Railroad track crew replaced the crossing at Glen Road on Sunday. The job involved replacing track with a welded section, and installation of new ballast and new paving. Similar work will be done on several other crossings in Wilmington this summer. No work is scheduled for this week. The next crossing to be done will be either the Clark Street or Salem Street crossing on the Wildcat branch.

Some problems remain in selling land to DRC

There were no big problems on July 7, in the meeting of the Wilmington Water Commissioners, with reference to the sale of land to Dynamics Research Corporation (DRC). Former commissioner Arnold Blake still thinks the land should be sold at public auction, but the rest of those participating feel that the sale should be by negotiation.

DRC seeks to purchase 30 acres near the Andover town line and north of Route 125. It would rezone to "office park" and locate its headquarters on that land. Discussions have been going on for some weeks.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski reported that a two-thirds vote is required of the state legislature before the town can sell the land. This was not news to the commissioners. Any "dedicated" land in any town or city may not be sold without legislative permission. Such land is to be found in parks, water reserves, etc.

A curb cut into the area from Route 125 is another problem. Route 125 is a part of the Federal highway system. To get legal entrance onto any land bordering a Federal highway means that a "curb cut" must be made. Only the Bureau of Roads can give such permission, and it does not do this very often.

Stapczynski reported that he has requested assistance from Congressman Ed Markey. The sale of the land, when it occurs, would be by the town meeting. Stapczynski said the town counsel did not see any serious objection to such sale. The town treasurer, Tony Almeida, has been instructed to check the deeds, and check the town's ownership. Commissioner Arthur Smith suggested that the land be appraised by two different firms, before any agreement is made with DRC on the purchase price.

Surveys of this property have started. Bart Paulding of Groton, an hydrological engineer, is doing a survey of the property, particularly with reference to the "zone of influence" of a well which belongs to the North Reading Water Department.

Hopefully, Paul Palermo of DRC reported, the survey will be concluded by mid August.

Civil engineer Erich Nitzsche of North Reading has been hired by Palermo to do a perimeter survey. He will also make a two foot contour survey. He has already prepared, Palermo said, a "spring water table."

The North Reading well is on the northerly side of Route 125 and just easterly of the Wilmington property. Stapczynski reported that it produces 125 gallons of water per minute (gpm).

That is a much slower rate than other wells in the area, which average out to about 500 gpm.

Boston artist

"Sidewalk Sam"

By David Hugh Smith
Special to The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

In their typically nonchalant manner, Bostonians are walking right over masterpieces of Western art — copies on concrete of works by artists like Degas, Renoir, Caravaggio, and others.

And no one's complaining. They're all participants — often unknowingly — in the Hub's "Boston Art Walk," a six-month effort by artist Bob Guillemain, who has garnered a certain amount of fame under the name "Sidewalk Sam." Although his works have been shown in museums and galleries — though sometimes under unusual circumstances — he prefers exhibiting on the street.

Mr. Guillemain's street work, however, has earned him considerable commercial success. The artist, who studied at the Ecole de Beaux Arts in Paris and eventually became a copyist at the Louvre, travels widely across the United States doing sidewalk masterpieces under the sponsorship of a wide range of commercial enterprises. He also specializes in something he calls "community-pride murals," artworks incorporating landmarks, local themes, or both.

It's a curious mixture of business and art that has become a three-person business called Guillemain & Co.

This summer more than 50 of Guillemain's acrylic paintings will decorate Boston, most of them along the city's "Freedom Trail," a path leading visitors through historic sites. In this he's backed by city and state agencies. Most of these works will be under business sponsorship, to the tune of $2,000 apiece (maintenance and corporate logo included).

Recently, Guillemain was at work on Boston Common near the busy Park Street subway station. His work for that day was a Revolutionary War Minuteman, a painting he completed with vigorous brushstrokes amid friendly tete-a-tetes with individuals from an ebbing and swelling audience of between 15 and 35. Then, underneath, in brilliant corporate colors, he added the logo of the company sponsoring the picture. Guillemain makes no apologies for his financial success, his dealings with business, or for his down-to-earth method of operation. He remarks: "The conditions are always right for art. There's no situation so mundane and poor that it isn't a beautiful environment for the human spirit."

"I want art to be part of a daily experience. Public art actually doesn't exist that much today. It's private art thrust into the public sector."

As for Guillemain's success at mixing paint with commerce, he says: "I offer to do something that's good for you, and you can pay me for it. That's a healthy way for art to act. Artists have to go out with a shovel over their shoulders and do some work." At the same time, he notes that "90 percent of [the sidewalk art] I've done has never been paid for."

Recently, Guillemain did one of his community-pride murals in Indianapolis to commemorate 100 years of downtown activity. It was sponsored by a shopping mall and will eventually be transferred to the Indianapolis Children's Museum. A larger-than-life-size Mona Lisa in a Portland, Ore., shopping mall wore away — along with its smile — in about a week, but sponsors were delighted at the heavy attention the exercise attracted in the news media.

Guillemain has done about a dozen works, mostly on sidewalks, for the Digital Equipment Corporation. According to Joseph Nangle, marketing and communications manager of Digital Business Centers: "He's the consummate showman. We treat these as a happening, not as a freezable, 'holdable thing.'" Hence the tendency of the work Guillemain does for Digital to be literal washouts after the next rainstorm. Sidewalk Sam's mural depiction of "25 Years of Digital in Chicago" remains, however, in Chicago's Merchandise Mart Building.

Guillemain's ultimate goal? "To do the Sistine Chapel ceiling on the sidewalk." ■

The only thing pedestrian about his art is its location

Roving Baseball stars all millionaires?

with Dan Ferullo

FM TALK: A few thoughts popped into mind this week:

As I watched this year's all-star baseball game, I couldn't help thinking that nearly every player in both leagues who participated in the contest was a millionaire! Then I considered something Mickey Mantle, that true all-star Hall of Famer who played with the Yankees so many wonderful seasons, said during a recent tv interview. Mantle revealed that he signed with the New York Yankees for a measly $1500 bonus, and his first year salary to play baseball was $500. A guy like Jim Rice earns more than that each time he steps up to the plate, albeit he's probably worth it by today's income standards.

While on the subject of sports, I'm having a difficult time discerning the justice in former BC basketball star Earnie Cobb's possible jail sentence of up to ten years (as his teammate received recently), if he's found guilty of that point shaving charge. Since Cobb's teammate has already been found guilty and been given a stiff sentence, it isn't likely that Cobb, if also found guilty, will be given any lesser punishment. All this in the light of a former Massachusetts' state police officer's slap on the wrist (he'll serve about one year or so) for the serious charge of stealing impounded marijuana from his own barracks, with the intention of selling it. Not that Cobb's crime is less wrong; it's just that I find it hard to see the fairness of the judicial system's handing out such vastly different degrees of punishment for two very serious crimes.

Now here's a hedge against inflation for you: In the New Yorker recently it was announced that two desks — that's right, desks — made in Newport, Rhode Island in the late eighteenth century were auctioned off in New York City and shattered previous record prices paid for American furniture. The first desk was sold at Sotheby's earlier this year for a whopping six hundred and eighty-seven thousand five hundred dollars. Needless to say, even those in the circle of wealth who regularly buy rare antiques, this sale caused quite a stir. The second desk, which incidentally was similar to the first (in fact, both desks were hand-crafted by the same fellows, Job and Christopher Townsend and John Goddard, who are considered the finest furniture craftsmen in the history of American furniture), was sold just last month at Christie's for six hundred and twenty-seven thousand dollars, a dollar amount that makes this sale the second largest in history. Oh, by the way, according to the auctioneers, these desks were terrific buys, even at their outlandish prices, since each would easily resell for a nifty price of one million dollars. That is, if their owners were willing to part with them. There are only a

Typical Voltage Spike
A typical voltage spike or surge is characterized by a rapidly rising voltage of relatively short duration — usually 100 microseconds to one millisecond. In a 125 volt application, if the spike voltage stays below 600 volts, no harm is usually done. If it rises above this level many solid-state devices begin to fail; and above 1200 volts, even standard insulation begins to fail.
The solid curve shows a typical voltage "spike" to which an unprotected solid-state device might be subjected. The dotted curve illustrates the voltage clamping action of the Voltage Spike Protector. The protector absorbs the energy in the spike and maintains the voltage to the solid-state device at a safe level.

'The All Night Strut'

Movie Review

You'd be crazy to miss Psycho II

By DAN KENNEDY

Poor Norman Bates. He's just gotten out of the looney bin after 22 years and he can't get any peace. Maybe he's nuts. Maybe somebody's trying to drive him nuts. He doesn't know.

That's the premise, at least, behind "Psycho II" (rated R), the long-awaited sequel to one of the most famous — and terrifying — movies ever made.

This Week's Poems

"WEDDED BLISS"

A lovely bride in silk and lace
Walking slowly down the aisle
To meet her proud and anxious groom
Waiting for her with a smile.

How wonderful the wedding day
When two sweethearts are wed
Joined in holy matrimony
As their sacred vows are said.

To promise to remember
To be forever true
To honor — love — and cherish
Until life's journey through.

Just caring for each other
In sickness and in health
To live in peaceful harmony
No need for worldly wealth.

Greet each day with a happy face
End with a goodnight kiss
And your marriage will forever be Filled with lasting bliss.

Theoretical physicists have worked out a history of the universe all the way back to an instant after the "big bang." That instant came to a fraction of a second expressed by a decimal point followed by 42 zeroes and a one. Yet, scientists long to know what happened before that, says National Geographic.

NEW IDEAS IN CANVAS AWNINGS

"Psycho II" is a well-made, workmanlike horror movie — not great, but much better than average.

Which means it's not nearly as good as Alfred Hitchcock's original "Psycho," and that explains why the sequel has been getting kicked and mauled by critics left and right.

It would have been impossible for the sequel to be as good as the original. For one thing, Hitchcock, the master, is dead. For another, we know Norman is a lunatic killer — the principal tension in "Psycho II" is whether he will revert to form.

That much said, "Psycho II" has some real moments of terror and is a worthy successor to Hitchcock's masterpiece.

Most of the credit for this must go to the excellent cast. Anthony Perkins is back for another turn as Norman, a part for which he is perfect. He's at least 20 pounds underweight, his hair is a skewed mop and his bulging eyes just can't keep still. In other words, he always looks capable of picking up a butcher knife and hacking away.

Vera Miles, who portrayed the sister of Janet Leigh (the victim in the famous shower scene) 22 years ago, is also back, this time as a scheming, vengeful Ida Loomis. She sparks with electricity, and her duel with Perkins is not diminished by the fact that they never meet, except for one brief instant as the movie opens.

Screen newcomer Meg Tilly, who plays Norman's (believe it or not) girlfriend Mary, is merely competent alongside Perkins and Miles. But she's adequate for her role and at least doesn't get in the way.

Scriptwriter Tom Holland has taken a wise course in not merely extending the story line of Hitchcock's original. He has developed an entirely new story and set of circumstances, and pulls more than a few surprises out of his hat.

If anyone should be criticized, it is director Richard Franklin. Pacing is poor, especially for the first hour, as Franklin ploddingly wallows through the script. Not exactly the reincarnation of Hitchcock.

Nevertheless, the plusses in "Psycho II" more than outweigh the minuses. If you were terrified by the original, you won't want to miss the sequel.

30TH ANNIVERSARY
Jazz buffs, worldwide, are making reservations here for the 30th anniversary of the Newport Jazz Festival, now titled Kool Jazz Festival, to be produced by George Wein at Fort Adams State Park, Saturday and Sunday, August 20-21, 12 noon to 6:30 p.m. Ella Fitzgerald, Oscar Peterson, Dizzy Gillespie and Vic Dickenson are four of the legendary names who appeared at America's first great outdoor jazz extravaganza on the grass tennis courts of Newport Casino.

Ella, Oscar, Dizzy and Vic headline an array of established and young jazz stars at this seaside event. Saturday's concert: Oscar Peterson, the Stan Getz Quartet, Spyro Gyra, Vic Dickenson, Gato Barbieri, Carmen McRae and her Trio with Marshall Otwell, Donald Bailey and John Leftwich.

Sunday's stellar lineup includes Ella Fitzgerald, Dizzy Gillespie, Art Blakey, and the Jazz Messengers featuring Terrance Blanchard, Charles Fambrough, Donald Harrison and Johnny O'Neal with guest stars Freddie Hubbard and John Faddis; the Wynton Marsalis Quintet featuring Branford Marsalis, Kenny Kirkland, Jeff Watts and Ray Drummond; the George Wein Kool Jazz Festival All-Stars, comprised of Scott Hamilton, Oliver Jackson, Warren Vache, George Wein and others.

From a humble start July 17-18, 1954, Elaine and Louis Lorillard and George Wein founded the Newport Jazz Festival. Wein blended Newport and jazz into a combination that popularized the "jam session" and launched a festival empire that stretches around the globe and includes Kool Jazz Festival stops in 22 U.S. cities this year.

That first 1954 Festival featured Eddie Condon, Wild Bill Davidson, Vic Dickenson, Ella Fitzgerald, Erroll Garner, Dizzy Gillespie, Bobby Hackett, Billie Holiday, Stan Kenton as m.c., Lee Konitz, Gene Krupa, Gerry Mulligan, Oscar Peterson, Pee Wee Russell, George Shearing, Teddy Wilson and others.

Like last year's event, Fort Adams State Park will provide a unique backdrop for two days of jazz under the sun. It's a relaxed seaside setting where several thousand jazz fans will gather to picnic on the lawns of Fort Adams. Ticket sales are limited to 6,500 each day. No alcoholic beverages will be permitted.

Tickets are now on sale at all Ticketron outlets and major ticket agencies throughout New England. Advance tickets are $17.50 per day, $20.00 on the days of the concerts.

For free brochure with ticket details, write Kool Jazz Festival, P.O. Box 605, Newport, R.I. 02840. Festival Headquarters: Viking Hotel, Newport, R.I. (401) 847-8100.

Kool is a product of the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation, Louisville, Kentucky, which also manufactures Sir Walter Raleigh Pipe Tobacco and Barclay, Viceroy, Raleigh and Belair cigarettes.

handful of these Townsend-Goddard desks around, and most are in museums.

I heard a statistic the other day that really surprised me: According to Ox-Fam America, thirty-eight of the forty poorest — that's poorest — countries in the world export food to the United States.... On the lighter side about food: Hey, Mr. Food, yeah, you've got me sold on the great taste of farm-bred catfish, but don't you think somebody could come up with a better name for it? It may be the rage of fish lovers across the country right now, but the name catfish has got to go. Who knows, though, the way fancy restaurants are big on odd-sounding dishes, Catfish Au

Gratin or Catfish Bella Vista just might catch on.

Since we're talking statistics, here's one that should make you sit up and ponder: Father Andrew Greeley, currently one of the hottest novelists in the country (his "Cardinal Sin" was one of the largest selling novels last year, and his latest, "Ascent Into Hell," was on the New York Times' bestseller list before it reached bookstores), claims that twenty-five percent of the Catholics in America envision God as a mother figure. Father Greeley, who has taken a lot of cheap shots from Catholics who are critical of a priest who writes somewhat steamy novels, says his books deal with religious subjects in a way that today's readers will understand them. He's also reaching a lot of people who might otherwise never be exposed to parables. Father Greeley's novels thus far have dealt with priests and nuns facing the dilemmas of modern times, but his next novel, "Lord of the Dance," will have a non-religious plot.

I keep having this nightmare: One morning I'll wake up and read in a newspaper that the fourteen thousand small banks in this country have been taken over by one hundred or so super-banks, and that these super-banks slowly siphon off money from these small banks to finance foreign investments until there isn't even money available to "the little guys" for automobile loans (there's no need for loan money anyway, since these super-banks will have driven up interest rates so high that no one will be able to afford a car loan anyway). In my nightmare, we've reached the pinnacle of a two-class system. Then I wake up in a bloody sweat and realize this nightmare will probably never come true, especially since, in the nightmare, Richard Nixon has succeeded Reagan as president. If there's a psychologist out there who can translate the meaning of my nightmare, I'd like to hear from you. A friend says it means I'm feeling guilt over still owning the first dime I ever earned. Boy, is he mistaken. One of these nights I'm going to finish this nightmare. I've yet to find out if I'm one of the rich or one of the poor class. With my luck, it'll be the latter.

The Bad Taste Award of the Year has got to go to Hustler magazine for that despicable cover on its August issue. Enough said.

"Man of LaMancha"

The North Reading Theatre Workshop's Summer production of "Man of La Mancha" features several local residents amongst its leading players. Juli Wood of North Reading will portray Aldonza, the serving girl turned visionary by the idealism of Don Quixote. Local theatre-goers will remember Juli as playing Nancy in this past spring's production of "Oliver!", as well as having delighted audiences with her comic portrayal of Ado Annie in "Oklahoma!", her touching depiction of Maria in "The Sound of Music", and her rousing characterization of Annie Oakley in "Annie Get Your Gun."

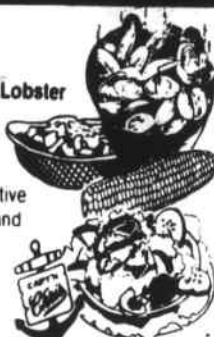

Leslee Perkins of Wakefield, another familiar face with the N.R.T.W. has the part of Quixote's housekeeper, and is faced with the fact that he is probably somewhat crazed.

Leslee has been involved in all of the N.R.T.W.'s productions, and most notably in "Fiddler on the Roof," "Mame," and "Oliver!" David Bartlett of North Reading, is somewhat of a newcomer to the N.R.T.W., but will be remembered as the burly Jud Frye in "Oklahoma," and the somewhat harrassed undertaker, Mr. Sowerberry, in "Oliver!" David has been cast in the dual roles of Dr. Carasco and the Knight of the Mirrors, and the Duke.

"Man of La Mancha," directed and produced by Paul D. Greene, will be presented August 5 and 6 in the Daniel Shay Auditorium at North Reading High School at 8:00 P.M. For tickets, or information regarding the fall's production of "Hello Dolly!" please contact the Greens at 24 Haverhill St., North Reading.

Screen front porch for summer

How can a homeowner beat the summer's heat, without burning up over electric air-conditioning bills? Many solve the problem by turning a patio, carport or breezeway into a cool summer living room with the simple addition of screening.

With a little bit of work, you can take advantage of Mother Nature's air cooling instead of the utility company's. The added space — usable year round in the South — can be a big help to families that have grown larger than the house.

Outdoor dining, safe from attack by insects, is just one of the many uses for the extra space. For any purpose, screened walls create a private space that is still open to the outdoors. Best of all, common hand tools and inexpensive materials make the job easy and affordable for do-it-yourselfers. Here are some tips from the Insect Screening Weavers Association on how it can be done.

What You Need

Whether enclosing a patio, breezeway, or open carport, you will need the same tools and materials: wood beams (2-in. x 4-in. and 4-in. x 4-in.), a saw, hammer and nails, metal framing angles, utility knife, staple gun and, of course, screening. All are readily available at local hardware and home supply stores.

Corrosion-resistant aluminum and fiber glass screening are the two most popular and inexpensive types. Both come in many widths to accommodate various porch panel sizes and can be cut with a sharp utility knife or tin snips.

For building on masonry, you will also need an electric drill with a masonry bit and non-rusting screws in lead sleeves, to secure the wood frame.

The Easy Way

The easiest project is enclosing a carport, breezeway or roofed patio. All you need do is build a frame wall secured to the floor and ceiling, then install the screening. To build three screen walls around a roofed patio, for instance, the following steps are recommended.

Each screen wall can be "pre-fabricated" as a unit, then secured. Begin by mounting 2-in. x 4-in. wood base strips along the floor, ceiling and main wall of the house — first drilling through masonry if necessary — and measure the space within the rectangles formed. You'll build a frame wall for each of these rectangles, then attach screening to the frames.

Build the frames separately to fit the three spaces, using vertical beams spaced evenly on 24-in., 36-in. or 48-in. centers — all three are typical screen widths. A horizontal "rub rail" at chair back height, about 30-in. above the floor, will add stability. Use the metal framing angles on corners where the vertical and horizontal beams are joined.

To provide an outside exit from the porch, use two 4-in. x 4-in. studs to frame a door opening in one wall. You can then install a pre-made door easily. Apply wood stains or other finishes before the screening is installed.

Once the frames are finished, raise them into position and nail them to the floor and ceiling base strips, then nail the corners together. Now, add the screening in each vertical section by unrolling from the top down and stapling it into place. Cover the staples with wood strips, "batens," the same width and finish as the wood studs. If you have built a door frame, install the door and start enjoying your new summer living room.

Other Tips

To screen a carport, build and install framing and screens as you would on the patio. For the side you will be driving into, you can make the frame your "garage door." Attach four heavy strap hinges to the top of the frame so the door will swing inward and up. You will need screen door braces — wire systems with turnbuckles to keep the frame stiff — and a simple pulley system to raise and lower the door.

In a breezeway, you might want to use removable screens, so you can put windows in the space in cooler months. Build the same type of frames, adding hanging channels and bottom fasteners, to hold the screens in place. Local hardware stores often will custom fit aluminum or wood frame screens, or you can build them yourself.

Begin by measuring the area each screen will cover and subtract 1/8-in. from each measurement. Cut four frame sections, using a miter box to make sure the corners line up properly. Smooth the cut edges with a file, then install the screening.

With school letting out for the summer, houses often seem to grow too small for the family hubbub. These easy screening projects can help expand summer living space to ease the pressure of a busy home and the pressure of a big air-conditioning bill, at the same time.

WOODCHIPS....

By ANTHONY MANCONI

For those who don't know the difference between baseball and football - in baseball it's the bases that get LOADED... The house I live in was built and owned by former bootleggers. The foundation is, "Stoned," the windows have a "Glazed," look and the wall are "Plastered."

I think I'll stay in Woburn, a real estate agent showed me a house in No. Reading advertised as follows, "Has sunken livingroom," (the supporting beam slipped off of the foundation wall) "Patio," (where the cement truck tipped over) "Needs minor repairs," (where the leg of the bathtub is protruding through the kitchen ceiling) "Brook on property," (runs right through the cellar) "Many extras," (eight coat hangers and two mop handles left behind by previous owner)...

The name Holland is famous the world over. The country where the Dutch Boy put his finger in the dike, the Holland Tunnel, connecting New Jersey and New York City and the Use sprayer for insecticides

Each year, most home vegetable gardeners are faced with a wide range of insects and diseases that threaten their garden plants. Commonly, general-purpose pesticides are chosen to battle these pests.

General-purpose pesticides usually contain one or more insecticides, a fungicide and quite often a miticide.

In reference to sprayers, there are four basic types used by home gardeners. Hose-end applicators consist of a jar which connects right on the hose. When properly calibrated, it will successfully mix the proper amount of insecticide solution with the water automatically as it is sprayed. There are also compressed air applicators which deliver a steady spray using air pressure supplied by a built-in hand pump. Another, the "flitgun" sprayer, needs pumping continuously as it is sprayed, and therefore is only suitable for small jobs since the amount of spray solution the tank can hold is limited. The "tombone" sprayer is excellent for large jobs and tall trees and consists of a pump-type sprayer with a weighted hose placed in a container of spray solution.

Dusters, on the other hand, are a bit easier to work with. There are the packaged pesticides that are sold with a shaker top for easy application, plunger dusters which consist of a hand operated air pump and the crank duster which has a larger capacity blower which feeds dust to the nozzles.

Whether spraying or dusting, choice of applicator is very important. Always operate and maintain equipment properly, and follow the manufacturer's directions for calibration and application rate. For further information on pesticides and their application, contact the Middlesex County Extension Service, 105 Everett St., Concord, Ma. 01742.

Holland Bus Line based right in Woburn. It is my pleasure to know and count him as a personal friend. I mean Dan Holland of Winchester, son of the owner of the bus line many years ago.

A dentist in Lynnfield just retired. He was a veteran of World War I, a member of the Yankee Division.

Fowl language is not permitted on my Uncle John Shea's chicken farm in Tewksbury. My cousin is a police officer in Stoneham, he arrested a Ghost Halloween for "haunting without a license" - he works part-time - in a Wakefield bakery making "Cop Cakes."

If your ship ever comes in, an I.R.S. agent will be on the pier waiting to "Dock" it. A friend of mine from Wilmington makes his living as a fisherman-every year he declares his, "NET," earnings...Folks, I have the utmost faith in America, that it will be forever great and free. Why? Because of the many young men and women who are industrious, dedicated and have that vigorous intellectual force to keep her that way.

Michael Varley, worked with me as my summer helper at the F.D.A. Lab in Winchester about ten years ago. I was extremely proud of him because of his willingness to work. He graduated Dartmouth, joined the Navy and now is back at his Alma Mater as Admission Officer. I couldn't be prouder if Michael were my own son. I'm a Navy man myself.

I remember my first ship assignment, the USS Bailey, DD 713. The Captain asked me, "Sailor, what is Port?" I hesitated, then nervously said, "I think it's a RED WINE Sir."

Coming Attractions

The ever popular farmers markets are opening up across the Bay State, and once again, farmers are returning to the city with fresh fruits and vegetables from nearby farms.

This year the local outdoor marketing outlets will operate in some forty-six communities, and most are easily accessible by foot, or public transportation.

While some markets have been in business since May, the majority have opted for opening on a summer's day in July, and all will be going strong by August with a bonanza of fresh farm products. For a listing of locations, dates and times, send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202.

Farmers markets bring a European flavor to shopping, as well as fresh vegetables that are picked and sold the same day by the farmers that grow them. The markets offer a wide selection of produce in season - from apples to sweet corn, tomatoes and zucchini - and there are wonderful specialty crops such as native peaches, fresh herbs, and raspberries when they are available from nearby farms.

An important "direct marketing" outlet, farmers markets are increasing in popularity with growers as well as consumers. Massachusetts "imports" more than 85 percent of its food at an annual cost of more than $3.5 billion, and this is revenue that could be spent in the state to boost the local economy.

Farmers markets are open in Boston - Copley Square, Field Corner, South End; Somerville - Union Square; Cambridge - corner of Bishop Allen Drive and Norfolk Street; Gardner -

Ride the Cranberry train

"It's full steam ahead for Edaville Railroad," says George Bartholomew, owner of the popular 19th century attraction that draws an estimated 250,000 tourists annually to the small southeastern Massachusetts community of South Carver in the heart of Cranberry Country.

To begin with, Edaville will host "Seldom Scene," a musical group that is probably the best bluegrass band in the country, on August 27 and 28.

Also appearing with them will be Joe Val and the New England Bluegrass Boys. Overnight camping will be available and Edaville's famous chicken 'n' cranberry barbecue will also be offered.

There will be a Kiddie Treasure Hunt on August 14th and on July 17, connoisseurs of vintage machinery can gather for the Antique Steam, Gas and Machinery Meet. On August 21, the Seventh Annual Antique Auto Show will give owners the chance to show off their prize possessions. A brand-new event, the Street Rod & Custom Car Show, will close out the season on Sept. 11.

On Sept. 21 and 25 and Oct. 1 and 2, Edaville's annual Massachusetts Cranberry Festival and Fair promises citified folk the chance to revel in such country traditions as a 4H fair, a pony pull, a loggers'-and-woodsmen's competition and a horse show.

Edaville's Railroad's main attractions are the 19th century narrow-gauge steam trains that were brought from Maine in the 1940s to help harvest cranberries. Lovingly restored to its original condition, the train takes visitors on a scenic 5½-mile ride through 1800 acres of cranberry bogs and woodlands. The largest cranberry plantation in the world, Edaville has evolved in recent years into a "19th century theme park" where one can ride an antique fire engine, carousel or horse-drawn trolley; drive a miniature "Model T"; or take a ride on a paddle-boat. Other attractions include Edaville's famous Museum of New England Heritage, a petting zoo and a cranberry shop.

Edaville Railroad is located off Rte. 495 on Rt. 58 in South Carver. For more information, call Edaville Railroad, 866-4526.

This week's COMING ATTRACTIONS is short on length but long on substance. Be sure to put Edaville on your "must visit" list for this summer and take the time to travel to a nearby farmers market for good food at good prices. Break the high-price food chain that begins in California or Florida.
